LEVI HENRY ELWELL
5 LINCOLN AVENUE
AMHERST MASSACHUSETTS

February 4, 1913.

Mr. Matt. B. Jones,
Boston, Mass.

Dear Mr. Jones:-

Replying to your inquiry about my Rupert Inscriptions, will say that the edition was limited to 107 copies, as was also the case with Shaftsbury Records of which you had copy no. 34 sent you on Feb. 22, 1913. Possibly it may interest you to know that the data were gathered and arranged, the type set, proofs read, forms printed, sheets folded by me practically without assistance. My work is teaching; but summer vacations are long and Vermont is healthy - even if people do die there - and genealogic work my diversion. Faithfully yours,

Levi H. Ellwell.

[simplified spelling]

Preface

This booklet is intended primarily for genealogists, and secondarily for those interested in epitafic literature; incidentally also it may serve as a supplement to Rupert records or as an appendix to the published history of the town. No doubt it contains a copy of the sole extant record of some of the persons named in its pages; and therein perhaps lies most of whatever value it may have.

The editor has tried to indicate: First, the exact lining of the inscriptions, and second, the original spelling and punctuation. To save space in printing, he has designated the end of the original lines by a vertical stroke; but no stroke is placed at the end of a paragraph. He has not been consistent in the use of capital letters; and some stones are so weathered that it was often hard, and sometimes impossible, to determine the punctuation. As it was out of the question to reproduce the original lettering, he has printed biographic data in Roman letters, and verse in Italics; but Latin, and rarely other matter, is given in Roman character. Occasionally a defect (e. g. lack of the dot in i or j) or a peculiarity of the original has been imitated, sometimes in the text of the inscription, but oftener in a note.

Since many of the older stones are broken and have been reset, the lowest portion of some epitafs is under ground: to uncover and decipher these portions has often required both time and patience. In a few other cases, only repeated examination, in the most favorable conditions of light and shade, was sufficient to insure certainty.

It is hoped that such notes as are given may be found helpful; it was not always easy to draw the line between what has been admitted and what omitted. A book of this sort without an index is an imposition on the reader and should be a penitentiary offense; so an index has been added. In the notes and index, some of the original defects and peculiarities that appear in the printed text of the inscriptions are not reproduced.

When inscriptions are recorded on different sides of a monument, the fact is indicated by the figures 1, 2, 3, 4, preceding the several groups of epitafs; and although usually designates the front of the stone, the other three figures have no fixed relative value.

With regard to the verse here printed, the editor ventures to express the hope that it will be read and quoted only with the reverence and sympathy due to those who had it recorded. Even the most beautiful verse utterly fails to express the beauty of human love.

CHAPTER 5

The purpose of this chapter is to provide a comprehensive overview of the various methods used to analyze the data collected from the experiments described in the previous chapters. The first part of the chapter discusses the general principles of data analysis, while the second part provides a detailed description of the specific methods used in the experiments.

The first method discussed is the use of statistical analysis to determine the significance of the results. This involves the use of various statistical tests, such as the t-test and the F-test, to compare the means of different groups of data. The second method is the use of regression analysis to determine the relationship between the variables being studied. This involves the use of various regression models, such as the linear model and the quadratic model, to fit the data.

The third method is the use of correlation analysis to determine the strength of the relationship between the variables. This involves the use of various correlation coefficients, such as the Pearson correlation coefficient and the Spearman correlation coefficient, to measure the degree of association between the variables. The fourth method is the use of principal component analysis to reduce the dimensionality of the data and to identify the most important variables.

The fifth method is the use of cluster analysis to group the data into clusters that are similar to each other. This involves the use of various clustering algorithms, such as the k-means algorithm and the hierarchical clustering algorithm, to identify the clusters. The sixth method is the use of discriminant analysis to classify the data into different categories. This involves the use of various discriminant functions, such as the linear discriminant function and the quadratic discriminant function, to classify the data.

The seventh method is the use of neural network analysis to model the data. This involves the use of various neural network architectures, such as the feedforward neural network and the recurrent neural network, to model the data. The eighth method is the use of support vector machine analysis to classify the data. This involves the use of various support vector machine models, such as the linear support vector machine and the non-linear support vector machine, to classify the data.

The ninth method is the use of decision tree analysis to classify the data. This involves the use of various decision tree models, such as the binary decision tree and the multi-class decision tree, to classify the data. The tenth method is the use of ensemble learning to combine the results of multiple models to improve the accuracy of the classification.

Introduction

The gravestones of Rupert are usually marble, some are granite, rarely a brown or gray stone was taken from the locality. Most of them were set upright, hardly ever is one laid horizontally over the grave. The inscriptions are often limited to the biographic record; but many of the oldest stones also contain verse, eulogy, comment, Scripture, or prayer for the departed, and some are decorated with angels heads, weeping willows, ivy vines, or flowers.

At first the biographic data were commonly cut in small Roman letters with only the necessary capitals, but the use of capital letters thruout began early, and now prevails almost exclusively; verse, etc., was generally cut in Italics. The size of the letters varies with the width of the stone according to the importance of the words or the amount of matter to be included in the line. Hence it was not uncommon for the names of the deceased to be cut on a curve to obtain sufficient room. Superior letters stand sometimes alone, often with a horizontal line underneath, usually with one or two commas or periods below and with or without the intervening line. Errors of two kinds are not rare: First, single letters wrongly made — hence such names as Sheidon (in capitals) for Sheldon, Soott for Scott, N with wrong slant, g and , with wrong curve, etc.; second, in lines where there was a slight lack of space, the last two or three letters are smaller, or a final syllable or short word would be put just above or below, or if two or three words were affected they might be written below to end even with the preceding part of the line. There are also many interesting and notable examples of simplified spelling.

The earliest death here recorded is that of Justin Eastman, p. 51. The earliest recorded in the Rupert old cemetery is that of Abigail Bailey, p. 16; but the stone was erected over fifty years later. The earliest birthdate indicated is that of Mary Sheldon, alias Mary Smith, p. 55.

Both the cemeteries in the village of Rupert are well kept, and the cemetery in the North village is in excellent condition.

*Dear as thou wert, and justly dear,
We would not weep for thee;
One thought shall check the starting tear,
It is that thou art free.*

Increase Sheldon. | died | July 6. 1835, in the 67. | year of his age.

*My God provides a richer cup,
And nobler food to live upon;
He for my life has offer'd up
Jesus, his best beloved Son.*

'Sarah Howlett | died | Feb. 15, 1871, | Æ. 60 yrs.

*Dear Sisters, our loss we deeply feel.
The tears of love we retain,
Until we all meet again.
The mortal affliction is past,
The age that in Heaven we spend,
Forever and ever shall last.*

Delila Howlett | died | Feb. 14, 1871, | Æ. 54 yrs.

*His presence makes eternal day,
All that's mortal I resign,
For angels wait and point my way.*

Lovely and pleasant in their lives, | in death they were not divided.

*They di'd to sin. they di'd to care,
But for a moment felt the rod,
Then springing in the viewless air.
Spread their light wings & soard to God*

1. The first of the year was a very dry one.

The weather was very hot and dry.

The crops were very dry and withered.

The people were very poor and hungry.

The government was very weak and corrupt.

1. The first of these is the fact that the British Empire is a vast and complex system of territories and peoples, and that it is not a single, unified entity. It is a collection of many different parts, each with its own history and culture, and each of which is subject to the same general principles of British rule.
2. The second is the fact that the British Empire is a system of mutual dependence. The different parts of the Empire are not isolated from one another, but are all interconnected by a common system of trade and communication. This system of mutual dependence is what makes the British Empire so powerful and so resilient.
3. The third is the fact that the British Empire is a system of shared values and beliefs. The British people have a common sense of duty and a common belief in the superiority of their own race and culture. This sense of duty and belief is what has enabled the British people to build and maintain the British Empire for so long.
4. The fourth is the fact that the British Empire is a system of shared interests. The British people have a common interest in the expansion and maintenance of the British Empire, and this common interest is what has enabled them to overcome all the difficulties and challenges that have faced them throughout their history.
5. The fifth is the fact that the British Empire is a system of shared power. The British people have a common belief in the right of the British monarch to rule over all the territories of the British Empire, and this common belief is what has enabled them to maintain their power and their position as the dominant force in the world.
6. The sixth is the fact that the British Empire is a system of shared knowledge. The British people have a common knowledge of the world and of the different peoples and cultures that make up the British Empire, and this common knowledge is what has enabled them to govern their vast and diverse territories so effectively.
7. The seventh is the fact that the British Empire is a system of shared resources. The British people have a common knowledge of the resources of the British Empire, and this common knowledge is what has enabled them to use these resources to their advantage and to the benefit of the British people.
8. The eighth is the fact that the British Empire is a system of shared goals and aspirations. The British people have a common goal of the expansion and maintenance of the British Empire, and this common goal is what has enabled them to overcome all the difficulties and challenges that have faced them throughout their history.
9. The ninth is the fact that the British Empire is a system of shared identity. The British people have a common sense of identity and a common belief in the superiority of their own race and culture, and this common identity and belief is what has enabled them to build and maintain the British Empire for so long.
10. The tenth is the fact that the British Empire is a system of shared destiny. The British people have a common belief in the destiny of the British Empire, and this common belief is what has enabled them to overcome all the difficulties and challenges that have faced them throughout their history.

THE POOR. THE SOCIETY HAS SINCE
GROWN TO BE ONE
OF THE MOST IMPORTANT AND VALUABLE INSTITUTIONS
IN THE KINGDOM.
IT HAS BEEN THE
MEANS OF
IMPROVING THE MORAL AND INTELLECTUAL CONDITION OF
THOUSANDS OF
THE POOR.
THE SOCIETY HAS ALSO BEEN THE
MEANS OF PROMOTING
THE CAUSE OF
EDUCATION AMONG
THE POOR.

Clip the wings I sore away

To mingle with eternal day

In Memory of | Solomon Brown, | who died Sept | 20th 1786, in the | 49th year of his age.

Spectator pause, and meditate on death,

Nor think the time mispent, you thus employ

Ere long, you also must resign your breath

To be prepar'd, will terminate in joy.

In memory of, Mr. | William Brown. | who died July 17th AD. 1805, |
In the 46th year of his age.

Pause friend, and let this monitory | rhyme⁶⁰

Employ one moment of thy | fleeting time.

Weep not for those whose Christian | race is run;

But weep for those who have not | yet begun;

Shed tears of sorrow o'er the | guilty soul,-

Of joy o'er those who've reach'd the | heavenly goal;

Whose heads victorious wear a | radiant Crown,-

Such is, we trust, the happy state | of BROWN.

Here sleeps his dust,- his spirit | rests a hero.

Complete in JESUS, likeness - | singing JESUS, love.

In memory of | Molley L. Brown. | the wife of William |
Brown. who died. Decr 24th | 1803. In the 40th Year of Her Age

To rise again, the Sun goes down,⁶¹

And in the Furrows, Grain is sown.

Beauties that Sleep, through Winters' Rei | gn

When Spring returns, revive again

Shall then the Friend, for whom we mourn

Never to life, again return?

Great source of Life! Light! Love & joy!

Let no such tho't, our Hope destroy.

Our lively Hope, that sometime Since

Through the Redeemers' Influence,

In whom She plac'd Her hope & Trust,

Shall burst this Tomb, shake off her Dust

Ascend to where God holds His Throne

And Immortality put on.⁶²

Notes

The inscriptions are printed in paragraphs, usually with three lines after each epitaf. In a case or two an original line does not end with the printed line. Occasionally matter has been printed in Roman letter instead of Italic. The superior figures introduced into the text refer to the following notes; superior figures reproduced from the original are explained in the notes.

- 1 The stones having this epitaf and the next rest on a common base.
- 2 The last word or words, inscribed under the end of the preceding line.
- 3 Initial and medial s and ss are old style, resembling f and ff.
- 4 In this line superior letter or letters, written above the preceding letter or figure.
- 5 Probably the footstone of 'mr. jonathan hay' below.
- 6 In the name or names, capital N always with wrong slant line.
- 7 The superior letter, written just above the following letter.
- 8 The word or words or letters, inscribed over end of preceding line.
- 9 Upper part of stone, lacking: words in [], by conjecture.
- 10 Closing words of each verse, written under end of preceding line.
- 11 Footstone has: Timothy D.
- 12 Stone about three feet southwest of Benjamin Harmon's; same shape and style of lettering.
- 13 Stones having this and the next two epitafs rest on a common base.
- 14 The upper part of this character, being continued to the left, makes AET in monogram.
- 15 The word in superior letters, at first omitted by the engraver, was later inserted above with a caret underneath.
- 16 In small letters, beginning above the preceding word.
- 17 This part of the word, written above the end of the preceding line.
- 18 This and the next two stones lie out of place against a tree.
- 19 The first 'Francis Graves' stone is partly under the monument.
- 20 The stone has TERRELL for lack of space.
- 21 The lowest part of the stone has been continued, so the next line is reversed; the words in brackets are conjectural.
- 22 Words printed after [] in both verses are written below, but not quite at the end of, the preceding lines.
- 23 This and the next two stones are brown, with inscriptions rudely cut in capitals. The 1 after S seems to be either a mistake of the cutter or a defect in the stone, so the date is meant to be 1314.

- 24 After 2 a figure has flaked off — either 9 or o.
- 25 The N is but partly cut, resembling N; see note 23.
- 26 Of the word 'green', a nick in the stone has removed the right half of n.
- 27 The marker has: Joseph H.
- 28 There is also a marker for Francis; and for each of the others except Marcus.
- 29 The engraver seems to have made F which he tried to change into T.
- 30 Iron clamp at right of 4, and no point visible.
- 31 All in capitals, except DIED, FEB.
- 32 All in capitals, except DIED. N always has slope from below upward.
- 33 All in capitals, except DIED. In SPEAR, the S is a little larger. The three stones are slate color, and the rude lettering is well cut.
- 34 Third line cemented across break in stone; only 'charmes' legible.
- 35 A marker north of following epitaf.
- 36 North of this is a base without gravestone.
- 37 The next eight stones in one lot, with this monument in the center.
- 38 The marker has C. C. OUR is written on down slope, above and at left of BABE(sic).
- 39 The four Shaw stones, east, the two Loveland stones, west. Two old gravestones have been removed and apparently placed under the monument.
- 40 'WIFF OF' is written. Stone on same base with next.
- 41 The last letter is l crosst like t.
- 42 Marker east of Dorathy Trumbull, south of preceding Trumbull children.
- 43 Shaft of monument fallen southward and prostrate, 1911, leans against south side of monument, 1912.
- 44 Name on east side of monument which stands in same lot with the five following stones.
- 45 Marker of preceding.
- 46 Marker set Aug. 23, 1912, in same lot with preceding.
- 47 Horizontal stone set to cover the grave, — the only such stone in Rupert.
- 48 Marker in lot with monument below.
- 49 Marker with no further inscription.
- 50 Stone lies on side behind and against the two preceding.
- 51 L was first made, then the I part was rounded into J.
- 52 The four markers bear the words: Father, Mother, Cordie, Velma.
- 53 Surname is probably: Lewis.
- 54 Markers have: Lena, Lewis, Edmund.
- 55 Markers have: one, Luella; the other, Fannie (baby sleeps).
- 56 A solitary date denotes birth. On side 2, an L stands first.
- 57 In separate lot near S. Barden; similar to Bebee markers.
- 58 A Bebee marker; no monument yet on lot.
- 59 Not clear whether surname is Murey or Housey.
- 60 Initial and medial s in lines 1 and 3; elsewhere it resembles l.
- 61 Final letter of mourn, Since, Dust, Throne, very small for lack of space.
- 61 (page 44; misprint for 62) The doubtful word — reproduced as nearly as possible in type — seems to be either 'seize' or 'serve'.
- 63 AMOS is the form of lettering.

- 64 Two separate stones with surname on common base | front mark 1 and back mark 2 respectively.
- 65 This word has s resembling f.
- 66 The figure 9 has curve on the wrong side.
- 67 Superior s in 31st is the old-fashioned f kind.
- 68 Only initial s in 'son' is old-fashioned.
- 69 Apparently a footstone not belonging to any of the following stones.
- 70 The first s in 'endless' like f; no other old-fashioned s in the epitaf.
- 71 The three commas in this epitaf curve to left instead of right.
- 72 In 30 the small o has a comma underneath.
- 73 The third line of stanza without appreciable spacing.
- 74 Footstones have: Caleb B., Orson B., E. H., P. H., Julia F.
- 75 The ry of this word is written below with a brace at left.
- 76 In consort, lifeless, rise, medial s like f. years, cut in smaller letters.
- 77 The marble in form of tree trunk, with ivy, cross and lily, ferns, anchor, scroll, etc; the name in old English letter.
- 78 The lines, cut with old-fashioned initial and medial s, are arranged thus:

```

_____
_____
_____
_____
_____
_____
_____
_____

```

- 79 This stone is next to the following.
- 80 The stonecutter made 'elevated', then tried to transform initial a into e.
- 81 The last two letters of Ongaillous are wetherd and uncertain.
- 82 The two-word lines are spaced to begin and end even with line 1, except the last where Æt. begins midway. A little flourish at the end was interpreted as a period and so printed.
- 83 This and the next three stones, on a common base.
- 84 The second time, MARCH.
- 85 This stone, thrown among a pile of stones behind toolhouse, shape and lettering similar to the Jones infant (page 49). Bracketed parts are conjectural, but are certain from comparison with Jones monument (page 63).
- 86 Stone broken across verse 4, and bracketed parts by conjecture.
- 87 In dust, shall, occurs old-fashioned s resembling f.

Index

I. NAMES OF PERSONS

In the following index, Roman figures occur in connection with names of deceased persons, Italic figures with other names; superior figures denote the number of times the name occurs on the page. Rarely a reference to persons indirectly named is given in parentheses. Unnamed children designated as son, daughter, babe, infant, child, etc. are noted only under the parents' names.

Page 11 The Horrace Root inscription should read as follows :

Died Nov: 7 | 1815 Horrace Root | aged 24 years.

Why do we mourn departing | 'friends'

Or shake at death's alarm'

'Tis but the voice that Jesus | 'sends'

To call them to his arms.
